The prostate is a gland within the male urogenital system. Troubles usually start during mid-life. Over the years, the hormone balance shifts and can affect organs; notably, the prostate situates at the junction between the urinary apparatus and the seminal vesicles, the prostate becomes enlarged causing a narrowing of the urethra (the canal where urine is excreted). This phenomenon is what causes difficult urination.

Lycopene	12.5 mg
Saw Palmetto Powder (Serenoa repens)	125 mg
Pumpkin Seed Oil Powder (Cucurbita pepo)	125 mg

Lycopene is an unsaturated hydrocarbon carotenoid commonly found in tomatoes and other foods that might improve benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH) related symptoms and slow the conditions progression. Components in saw palmetto seem to ease the symptoms of frequent/painful urination, and perineal heaviness. Phytosterols in pumpkin seed oil may improve BPH symptoms like nocturia.
